By THOMAS ELLIS, GARDENER to the Lord Biſhop of LINCOLN.

EXTRACT from the PREFACE.

In thoſe Calendars hitherto publiſhed, the Reader has the trouble of turning to many different parts of the book to find out the general cultivation of the Plant, which it is abſolutely neceſſary to be acquainted with, before he can judge properly of performing any one part.

To obviate this inconvenience, a Catalogue is firſt given of all the Plants, Herbs, and Roots which are cultivated for the table in England, arranged in alphabetical Order, with an account of all the valuable and eſteemed eſculent varieties of each ſort, at preſent known, and in what month of the year they are fit for uſe. The general cultivation of the Plant, from the ſeed to its perfection, is then deſcribed, and afterwards, under EACH MONTH is mentioned what is then neceſſary to be performed, without repeating the particular method of the operation.
